Re: Copyright Infringement

Dear Mr. Burks:

I am an attorney for The New York Times Company. I write regarding your posting on www.wanttoknow.info of the article "Experts Urging Broader Inquiry in Towers' Fall" (James Glanz and Eric Lipton) which was published in The New York Times on December 25, 2001. This posting without permission is a violation of our copyright. It is not fair use. You should be aware that a willful copyright violation could subject you to statutory damages.

The New York Times allows you to link to New York Times articles for seven days following publication of an article. The instructions for doing this are located at <http://www.nytimes.com/membercenter/faq/linking.html>. To license New York Times material, you need to contact Peter Simmons at The Times Agency. He can be reached at 212-499-3392.

We must insist that you remove the December 25, 2001 article from your website and refrain from such copyright infringement in the future. Please respond to me within five days and let me know whether you will agree to resolve this amicably and quickly.

Sincerely,

Nancy Richman
